"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of"—their own bread and butter, if it happens they are prune growers. For years "outside" growers have been enjoying the efforts of various marketing associations without themselves participating. Some of them are stupid enough to believe that they get association prices or better through their own shrewdness; the more intelligent realize that, as organized labor holds wages up, so do the activities of cooperatives hold up prune prices inside and outside as well.

The time has come, however, for "outside" growers to get wise to the situation and sign up their tonnage in the United, for if they don't there just ain't gonna be no cooperative to hold up prune prices next fall. And it has come about like this: Many signing participating contracts with the Association or the United no longer own the property on which the prunes are grown. Foreclosures, new tenants, etc., have served to reduce the 80 per cent control, essential to cooperative marketing, to a bare shadow of its former lusty self. And now all you growers have got to get in and root hog or die—and that before the 15th of this month.

It is high time, anyway, for a lot of chronic outsiders" to get off the shoulders of the organiations and prepare to carry some of the responsibility themselves.

Too much cannot be said of the loyalty of those growers who for years have supported the Association, when some "smart" neighbor was getting a few more dollars for his crop from desperate independent packers. It must have irked them like the very devil to know that their common sense and loyalty were making it possible for "outsiders" to get as good or better prices than they themselves received for prunes.

These old-time cooperators, however, are seeing their judgment vindicated with a vengeance. With more and more prune producers moving into the ranks, with the United and the Association slowly but surely bringing order out of a cut-throat, chaotic market, with their advertising of prunes in England and major European countries, the prune industry is rapidly finding a place in the sun similar to that occupied by the splendid Sunkist citrus fruits organization which today and all through the depression has done more for its members than probably any other cooperative of its kind. Years ago citrus growers saw the light, organized, and spent millions of dollars on advertising and systematic marketing. What they have done, prune growers can do also—if they hang together as one man . . . . . if they don't, they'll trudge over the hill to the poor house one by one, and big business will gleefully operate their ranches, and market the product thereof through an organization very like the United. Sign-up now!

Campbell Man Appointed On Farm Debt Committee Of Santa Clara County

A farm debt adjustment committee for Santa Clara county has been appointed by Governor Rolph with the following membership:

Arthur Baldwin, chairman, Gilroy; Harry Barnes, Campbell; K. E. Bracher, Santa Clara; Joseph A. Chargin, San Jose; Edward Howes, Los Gatos; A. V. Picchetti, Cupetrtino; Charles G. Spargur, Mountain View.

These appointments were made by Governor Rolph on the recommendation of the California Farm Debt Adjustment committee which was appointed by the governor at the request of the Federal Farm Credit administration.

In announcing the appointment of this committee, T. C. Tucker, chairman of the California Farm Debt Adjustment committee, made the following statement:

"It has been the experience of committees set up in other states that the very announcement of the appointment of such an organiation has concentrated attention on the problem of adjusting debt differences between farm debtors and creditors so that efficient farmers may be able to hold title to their farms and continue to operate them.

"The operations of these committees in other states have proved of profound value to agriculture and to the communities where adjustments have been effected. Delinquent taxes have been paid, current creditors have received money and farmers have been enabled to continue the operations of their farms on a basis which has resulted in their being able to pay their way.

"In many instances it has been only necessary to suggest to a debtor applicant that he go to his creditors and 'lay his cards on the table.' Sometimes this has resulted in an agreement which has freed the committee from the necessity of giving official attention to the application. In other instances it has been possible for the committees to refer the problem to some third party, thereby effecting an understanding without a formal hearing.

"Such procedure is highly recommended by the state committee, since it has been desirable to appoint the very busy type of men to these county committees and every effort should be made to conserve their time.

"When it is necessary to get creditors together with the debtor, the review which takes place at such hearings enables compromises to be more easily reached .

"Also, the county committees are in an excellent position to assist the representatives of closed banks and other creditors which must proceed through the usual legal channels.

"In this connection, wherever county conciliation commissioners have been appointed, the debt adjustment committees can cooperate with them to the advantage of

PAST MASTERS' PROGRAM HELD BY O.C. GRANGE

At a session of Orchard City grange Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows hall, a brief business meeting was followed by a lecture hour devoted for the most part to observance of "Past Masters" night.

Mrs. M. F. Hughes, lecturer, had prepared a mimeographed booklet, each page of which contained a poem about, and a caricature of individual past masters. The poems were the work of Mrs. Hughes, and professed to be her observations as each past master in turn presented himself to St. Peter, demanding admittance to heaven, and recounting their exploits upon earth in substantiation of their demands. The sketches were well done, very apt, and thoroughly enjoyed by the grangers.

Joe McKinnon presented his comic Irish drill team, whose antics proved very amusing, and a visitor, principal of Mt. View high school, gave a talk on a bill which, if passed by congress, would provide pensions of $200 for old people of 60 or over. An open forum followed.

Past State Master Pettit was present, and talked from the past masters' viewpoint.

Stanley Smith reported on the fight of milk producers to equalize the price of milk whether purchased at the store or delivered to the home, and the grange went on record as in favor of equalizing prices as sought by the producers.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

SENIOR PLAY GETS CROWD

Friday evening when the curtain rose in the grammar school auditorium, players in the senior play, "Her Step-Husband," looked out upon a gratifying crowd.

Wentz, as did the work of the supporting cast which included Salvadore La Barbera, Dr. Niles; Alex Moisenco, Lanigan; Robert Gilbert, Officer Shea; Maxine Bouchard, Sylvia Allen; Violet Rhoten, Florence Ainslee; Ruth Farman, Miss Paisley; Wilma Taylor, Stella.

Of great help in successfully producing the comedy were the following committe chairmen: Alex Moisenco, stage; Violet Rhoten, publicity, and Robert Stojanovich, properties.

Local Merchants Join Interurban Credit Associanion

Progressive Campbell merchants have organized a unit which will participate in a merchants' association to include the towns of Santa Clara, Campbell, Cupertino, Sunnyvale, Burbank, and perhaps Saratoga, with its main office in the first named town, according to leaders of the movement here, who met last night in the Curry building.

The new organization will be in position to function in about two weeks, according to George Cracknell, Santa Clara, coordinator of the combine. "The need for such an organization has long been felt in the rural communities," said Mr. Cracknell, commenting upon the value of the association, "but heretofore it has been impossible for a group of merchants in a small town to shoulder the expense necessary to such a project. With cooperation between a number of small towns, however," he said, "the thing becomes easily possible.

"Too," continued Cracknell, "the small isolated merchants association is pretty heavily handicapped by lack of data from other communities, but as a widely spread cooperative organization its members will enjoy reciprocity with the San Jose Merchants association, and state and national credit organizations.

Success of Prune Industry Squarely on Shoulders of "Outside" Growers, Hersman

San Francisco, May 9—As a result of the first week's work to bring back the tonnage controlled by the United Prune Growers of California to the 80 per cent required to maintain the organization in existence, officials of that organization reported today that only 376 tons had been signed.

In stressing the critical situation facing the industry organization in its efforts to secure the additional tonnage needed before midnight of May 15, it was pointed out that failure to obtain the full 80 per cent needed by that date will mean that the United will cease to operate as soon as it completes the sale of its remaining holdings of the 1933 crop.

"It is inconceivable if the 'outside' growers understand the facts in the case that they will allow the United to pass out of existence now when it is needed most," Hugh Hersman, president of the United asserted today.

"The discontinuance of the United at this time would be a major disaster to the California prune industry," Hersman declared. "It would automatically mean lower field prices on every ton of the 1934 crop. It would also seriously handicap the growers in obtaining a satisfactory marketing agreement in which their interests would be properly protected.

"There are reports being circulated in some districts that if the sign-up is successful negotiations for marketing agreement will not be actively pressed forward in order to secure its approval in time to make it apply to the handling of the 1934 crop. These reports are without any foundation in fact. Every effort will be made to secure adoption of the marketing agreement in ample time to make it apply to the 1934 crop.

"Under these circumstances we really are asking the 'outside' grower to do very little. We need, as a protection to values for the 1934 crop, his signature upon a one-year contract, tieing his production into the United until a marketing agreement can be pushed through. If the necessary 'outside' tonage is so signed up it is a 100 to one shot that a satisfactory marketing agreement can be made effective for the 1934 crop. If this is done his signature will place upon him no obligation whatever as United would cease to operate and the marketing agreement would govern.

"Failure of the sign-up might mean no organization whatever. It would necessarily weaken the position of this organization in its negotiations for a marketing agreement and should opposition to such an agreement develop it might prevent its becoming effective in time to handle next fall's crop under the terms of its provisions.

"The responsibility for the success or failure of the present drive rests squarely upon

First Half Inter-City League Won By Campbell Club

By Hal De Fraga

By virtue of the fact that Franklin beat Richmond-Chase while Campbell was trimming Saratoga, Campbell is the winner of the first half of the Inter-City league series and are assured of a chance in the play-off with the winner of the second half. Their 11 to 6 win over Saratoga makes it four in a row for Campbell. Now they will be out to make it five straight and take the second half.

Quain on the mound Sunday turned in his second win in as many starts. He was given a good lead by his team mates and coasted in to victory. Perusina did not last long, as Campbell scored eight runs in two and two thirds innings. Kelly was called in and was touched for three runs in two innings. Perusina then came back and pitched shut-out ball for the remaining three innings.

Campbell tallied twice in the second when Jack Silberbauer doubled and went to third on Reed's infield out. Quain was passed and stole second. Ladue came through with a three bagger to drive them across. In the third the local nine had a "merry-go-

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Forging into a role of almost equal importance with the state department of agriculture and the college of agriculture, insofar as the farming industry is concerned, California's highway program, in recent years, has literally paved the way for a more successful and profitable agriculture in many sections of the state.

And many of the benefits which the highway work has brought to the farmer has come as the result of activities which the general public, and the farmer in particular, seldom associates with the highway department.

Focusing attention on these vital, but little appreciated functions of the division of highways, Earl Lee Kelly, director of the state department of public works, has recently evidenced his desire to cooperate with agriculture and the farm organizations by approving their request that weed-control work be continued in all hazardous areas.

Seemingly insignificant, as compared with the general highway program, the weed-burning program has actually saved California farmers many thousands of dollars, both by reducing fire losses and by preventing the spread of noxious weeds which would cause untold damage to farm crops.

The highway department's agreement to carry on with the weed-control work is especially commendable from the farm standpoint in view of the fact that the department is now charged with the responsibility of maintaining nearly 14,000 miles of highway, as compared with 7100 miles under state maintenance previously—and with a marked reduction in its budget.

There has been a disposition on the part of the motoring public, in times past, to insist that all gas tax collections be used in building and maintaining the traveled portion of the highway—an attitude which has made it doubly difficult for the department to take care of the entire roadway, as an orderly program requires.

As a matter of fact, highway development has brought with it many new problems, such as fire hazard and dangers to life and property, and agriculture, together with the general public, is fast gaining a new appreciation of the many ramifications of a properly balanced highway program.

Traffic stripes, for example, have become an imperative necessity with increasing traffic congestion and have saved many hundreds of lives. Traffic counts and studies have made it possible to build intelligently, with large savings to the taxpayers. The demand for all-year highways introduced a new charge for snow removal work. And still other by-product activities of the highway maintenance program are dust oiling, tree planting, roadside beautification, weed control, directional and safety signs, traffic signals, sanding of icy pavements, slide removal, repair of cloudburst damages, etc.

Little known to the average taxpayer, but vitally important, is the highway research laboratory at Sacramento, directed by Assistant State Highway Engineer T. E. Stanton. From the research laboratory have come major economies, greatly improved and more lasting roadways.

As still another example of unusual—but necessary work—of the modern highway department, a large number of families in Mono county, snowed in last winter by repeated blizzards and faced with starvation, were saved when highway tractors broke through with relief supplies—at a cost of $150,000.

Similarly, hundreds of snow sport visitors in the Lake Arrowhead region were saved from death in a blizzard by the prompt relief of highway crews. And, again, highway workers saved both lives and property during the disastrous flood which swept the Montrose-La Crescenta district near Los Angeles some months ago.

Every section of the state—and every type of citizen—benefits by the manifold functions of the modern high way program. It still takes the farmer's crops to markets—and the business man to and from his enterprises. But beyond that, it protects lives and property—and attempts to solve the myriad problems which have sprung up with the nation's finest network of highways.

the shoulders of every 'outside' grower. He must make a definite decision within the next few days. If he is willing to face the facts and to think clearly there is only one decision possible. round" in which six men dented the home plate. Atkinson was safe on an error and on Woodworth's bunt traveled clear to third base, scoring on Johnson's single.

Silberbauer got a free ticket to first and both scored on Reed's two base hit.

Quain "whiffed" but Ladue came through with his second hit to chase Reed across. Strong and Tucker followed with another two bagger to drive in two more. Atkinson up for second time grounded out to end the inning.

Campbell scored once more in the fourth when Woodworth, first man up, was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored on Silberbauer's hit. The last two runs came in the fifth. Ladue led off with his third hit of the game, stole second, went to third on Strong's infield out, and scored on Tucker's fly to left. The other tally came across when Atkinson singled and went clear around on three consecutive overthrows.

Saratoga scored once in the fourth when Saich singled and scored on an error. They got to Quain for three in the fifth on a walk to Poncia and hits by Spaich, Priest, and Saich. They scored their last two in the seventh on an error by Atkinson on Priest's roller, a walk to John Alleini and hits by Saich, Booserance and Pete Alleini.

All in all Saratoga collected eight hits off Quain's delivery while Campbell pounded Perusina and Kelly for 18.

Saich and Ladue led the the hitters, each getting three Strong, Johnson, Silberbauer and Booserance were able to secure two hits each. Ladue tripled while Strong, Tucker, Silberbauer and Reed doubled.

Jack Silberbauer returned to the Campbell lineup after an absence of four weeks because of injuries and he proved to be quite a star. He was a dangarous man at the plate and on the bases. The game was also featured by good base running of the whole Campbell team and of Atkinson in particular.

Next Sunday Campbell will play Richmond-Chase in the first game of the second half. Campbell won the last encounter by a 5 to 4 score behind Jung's stellar pitching. Either Jung or Clark will get the call. Come out and support your team—it's a winner.

Party Menus for Little Tots

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

"IT'S MY birthday today"! What a wealth of importance and pleasure in those words from a youngster's lips. All other days seem to pale in importance beside this one very personal day of his own. Only a real party seems big enough to express the full meaning of this day to a child. It takes so little of a mother's effort to plan just such a party. She needs only to invite a group of young friends, collect enough easy well known games to keep the party rolling along swiftly, and to prepare simple refreshments accented by a birthday cake with all its glimmering candles. The menu should be a happy blend of old and new—the familiar ice cream and cake combined with other suggestions. The following menus will assure old favorites in a new guise.

Pineapple Juice
Peanut Butter Sandwiches (cut in animal shapes)
Prune Mousse Surprise*
Milk

Tomato Juice
Creamed Chicken on Toast Cubes*
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Angel Food Jelly Balls* Ice Cream
Lemonade

Fruit Cup
Cream Cheese and Jelly Sandwiches
Ice Cream Molds or Ice Cream Cones Birthday Cake
Iced Chocolate

(*) Indicates recipes given below.

Prune Mousse Surprise—Partially whip ½ pint whipping cream, add ⅛ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and beat until thick. Fold in 1 tin Strained Prunes and 1 stiffly beaten egg white. Pour into pan, place in refrigerator and freeze until solid. Cut the tops from sponge cup cakes and set aside. Scoop out the cakes to make hollows, being sure to leave enough thickness in the walls and bottoms to hold the cakes firm. When ready to serve, fill the cakes with Prune Mousse, replace the top and dust the cakes with powdered sugar or top with a meringue.

Sponge Cake—Sift cake flour once, measure 1 cup and sift 4 times with ¼ teaspoon salt. Add grated rind and juice of ½ lemon to 5 egg yolks beaten until thick and lemon colored, and beat with rotary egg beater until very thick and light. Beat 5 egg whites with flat wire whisk until stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Fold in 1 cup sifted sugar, a small amount at a time, then fold in egg yolks. Fold in flour, a small amount at a time. ● Bake in ungreased muffin pans in slow oven (300° F.) for ½ hour, or until done. Remove from oven and invert pan 1 hour, or until cakes are thoroughly cold, before removing cakes from pan.

Creamed Chicken on Toast Cubes (Serves 8)—Melt 4 tablespoons butter, add 4 tablespoons flour and stir until thoroughly blended. Add 2 cups milk and ¾ teaspoon salt and stir until thickened. Add a few drops of juice scraped from a cut onion, a dash of pepper and a few drops of Worcestershire Sauce. Add about 2 cups cold cooked chicken, diced. Heat thoroughly and serve on cubes of toast garnished with slices of Stuffed Spanish Olives and a dash of paprika.

Angel Food Jelly Balls—Heat ½ cup milk with 2 tablespoons butter to scalding point. Add 1 cup sugar and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Sift 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat 4 egg whites until frothy, add ½ teaspoon cream of tartar and continue to beat until whites stand up in a point. Add flour mixture to the milk and sugar mixture and beat thoroughly. Fold in egg whites and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into well greased and floured muffin pans. ● Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 25 minutes. This makes 1 dozen cakes. Put 1 glass Currant Jelly in small bowl, beat with fork, dip each cake into it, then roll in cocoanut. Place a birthday candle in a rosebud holder in the center of ball so each child will have an individual birthday cake.

HEALTH NOTES

Prepared by the CALIFORNIA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

GROWTH IN THE ADOLESCENT PERIOD

The process of "growing up" is not infrequently painful for parents as well as for the child. Modern child specialists say this is one of the most important periods in the life of a human being.

The modern understanding of the period of adolescent growth, 12 to 16, reveals two distinct types when individual studies are made.

1. Those showing a gradual increase in growth over a period of considerable time, ranging from about one to two years.

2. Those showing a rapid increase in height or weight or both, over a period of two to three months. Here we find a large group which has "spurts" of rapid growth at different periods, forging away ahead at one time in height and catching up later at another in weight, or vice versa.

Physicians say the systematic recording of growth in length at yearly intervals is important as a basis for judging whether a child is growing normally, according to his individual pattern. The increase in length from year to year is much more significant than the actual length at any given time.

Any marked variation from from the average increase in length for children of the same race, sex and age is an indication for seeking expert assistance to determine the cause of the variation.

Throughout the period of growth, changes in weight are considered important manifestations of growth and failure to gain weight from one year to the next is usually an indication that something is wrong with the care and protection given to the child.

On the other hand, too rapid increase in weight at any period may endanger wholesome development and call for special treatment.

Each person has his own normal weight, irrespective of tables, which takes into account his build, type, inheritance, age, endurance, resistance to fatigue, infection, and so forth.

Medical supervision at regular intervals during this trying period is of paramount importance and should never be neglected. This growth period is one of tremendous adjustments physiologically, psychologically, mentally and emotionally.

The child's point of view changes to the beginning of the adult point of view, creating emotional conflicts that seriously affects the well being of the individual. This is the "awkward age" from a physiological standpoint. The thyroid, pituitary and gonadal systems are developed often at different rates, which accounts for the many and varied physiological and psychological disturbances that occur. At this age many hazards arise, such as the readjustment of bodily functions, increased susceptibility to fatigue, tuberculosis, and the lighting up of old infections and aggravations of cardiac disease. It is a time in the child's life when watchful care will pay big dividends.

SNAKES HIS HOBBY

When Kenneth Johnson wakes up, looks at the foot of his bed, and sees snakes all over the place, it isn't what you think. In fact, it's quite all right. Because Kenneth, a student at the University of California, is in a fair way toward being an expert herpetologist. Johnson, who graduates from the university soon, has an ambition to be a zoo director. He's starting with snakes, and in cages along the foot of his bed he has two king snakes, a six-foot indigo snake, a small boa constrictor, a moccasin snake from Florida, two chicken snakes from Texas, and a gila monster. He had seven rattlesnakes, but they developed something and died. He also has a black widow spider, reputedly fatal when it bites. He calls it Eliza and keeps it in a mayonnaise jar on his dresser.

COUNTRY CLUB WOMEN ENJOY AFT. AT CARDS

Sponsored by the Campbell Country Woman's club to raise money for the student loan fund of the Santa Clara County Federation of Woman's Clubs, a card party held at Community hall last Wednesday attracted 44 players.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Clifton Crothers and Anthony Corbisiero who, accompanied by Miss Jeannette Wellington, offered two clarionet duets, Wagner's "Evening Star" and Schubert's "Serenade."

Tea and cakes were served.

A small one story house on Luther avenue between Kirk and Jarvis roads, the property of the Bank of San Jose, was consumed by fire last week. The house was unoccupied, and the blaze suspected as starting from a grass fire.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

At Tuesday's meeting of the Kiwanis club Dud DeGroot, San Jose State college football coach, who was to have talked on his hobby, birds, was unable to be present due to illness. He will appear before the club at a later date.

To fill the void, Ira Abbott, chairman, suggested a musical program, so A. A. Thielke, never to be caught unawares on a demand of that kind, whipped up a fine program in a hurry. Participating were Vincent Fischi, Wilbur Morton, Charles Boyd, Ted Cutting, Clifton Crothers, Hugh Cramer, David Bohrman, and Jeannette Wellington, high school musicians.

The meeting was furter enlivened by stories of recent anglers. Ralph Smith caught the biggest fish and told the biggest lie, and Ira Abbott just got the biggest limit.

Next week T. A. Cutting will be chairman, and R. C. Baird, manager of Western Union in San Jose, will talk on "Telegraphy."

A number of Campbell Kiwanians will attend a divisional meeting at Salinas Monday.

Miss Dorothy Callahan has been visiting Miss Maude Smith for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Worthin Grattan was hostess to Congregational guild ladies of Group 2 at her home Thursday. Miss Jessie Lewis was co-hostess.

Organizing Fourth Internationale

"A car in every garage and two fur coats for every scrub lady" is the platform outlined by Arne Swabeck, organizer in New York for Leon Trotzky's Fourth Internationale. His organization has branches in all American industrial centers and differs from the Communistic party only in its policy of international rather than national socialism. "Everything will work out," he says, "after the government has seized the factories, railroads, steamships, stores and banks."

Campbell Man On Committee

both debtors and creditors.

"It has been the experience of committees in other states that it is highly useful in many of these cases to give debtors and creditors a chance for a friendly conference with the committee. Of course, the committees always assume an impartial viewpoint, and since the proceedings are entirely informal it is not necessary for either debtor or creditors to be legally represented.

"At all times the committee should be prepared to recommend the delaying of foreclosures while investigations are being made or while an application for a federal farm loan for refinancing purposes is being considered.

"In those cases which present a legitimate reason for foreclosure, the committee should be in a position to advise the creditor as to procedure.

"Also, committees should be prepared to recommend extension agreements which in a sense will 'freeze' the accumulated indebtedness and provide for the division of available income among creditors, taking into consideration priority of claims until such time as it may seem advisable to effect a more permanent settlement of the case.

"The committee may also be of considerable assistance to judges passing on debt cases by presenting pertinent information based upon an impartial investigation of a debtor's property and his financial standing.

"These represent only a few of the more important way by which county adjustment committees may render service.

"There is no question that the personnel of the committees appointed in California indicate a recognition of the responsibilities imposed upon them, and I am sure that they will have the confidence of the people of the counties which they represent.

With this type of personnel and following the procedure which has been found successful in other states, there is every reason to believe that equitable and fair adjustments of debt difficulties will be reached by these committees."

The committee for Santa Clara county is prepared to function, and on application of debtors will be glad to furnish blanks whereby their cases may be presented to the committee for action.

DRAFTED AS MAYOR

The men of Washington, Ark., being too busy to hold office, called on the women to run the town, and Mrs. Charlean Moss Williams was drafted as mayor, though she is sixty-five years old and a grandmother. She said that with her complete set of women officials, she would "do a little house cleaning."

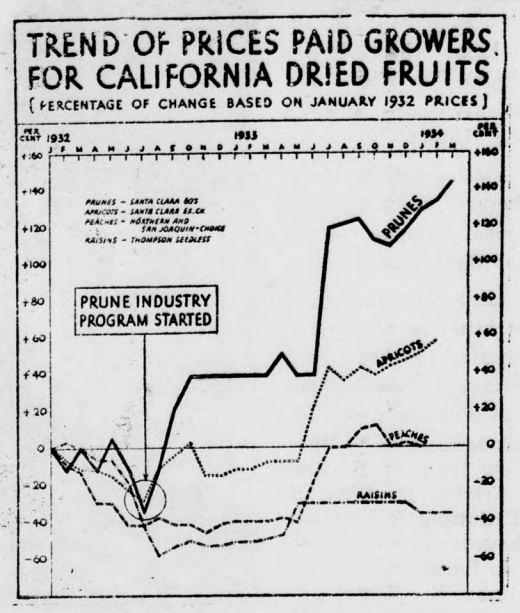
VALUE OF ORGANIZATION REFLECTED IN GRAPH OF '32-'34 DRIED FRUIT PRICES



The exceptionally strong position occupied by the California prune industry after two years of operation of its industry control program which was inaugurated in the summer of 1932 is strikingly shown by an analysis of field prices paid to growers over this period of time.

These figures are of particular interest at this time in view of the signup drive which is now under way to bring back the tonnage controlled by the United Prune Growers of California to the 80 percent needed to maintain that organization in existence.

Failure to secure the required tonnage would mean that the present grower's organization would cease to function after completion of the sale of the 1933 crop.

This would seriously affect field values of the 1934 crop and would also deprive the growers of any state-wide industry organization which could properly represent their interests in the discussion now taking place for the drafting of a marketing agreement under the provisions of the agricultural adjustment act.

The above chart shows by percentage the month to month increase or decrease in prices payed by packers to growers since January of 1932. The level of prices prevailing as of January, 1932, is used as the basis of comparison.

Notice first that the prices of all dried fruits—peaches, apricots, raisins and prunes— have been affected by the generally improved business conditions of the past twelve months. Then notice particularly that prices on prunes, the only industry which has had a strong industry control organization, have definitely increased by a much larger percentage than any other dried fruit.

Of special interest to prune growers is the fact that prune prices began to increase as soon as the industry stabilization program was first assured in the summer of 1932. Then notice also that prune prices increased sharply in July of last year, reflecting the strong position of the California prune industry when the United made its opening offering on the 1933 crop.
